

problem we have engaged in mindless fingerpointing that blames adversity on the system.

This rhetoric of blaming the victim and the poor must stop. Death's like these have occurred because of the systematic destruction of America's social safety net.

We must invest in our fellow human beings instead of turning our backs on them. If we fail to do this, there will be thousands more like Elisa and Debra.

It should not take these heinous crimes to serve as a wakeup call that we must change our course. Stop making excuses and start funding change.

SHOW US WHERE CHANGES SHOULD BE MADE IN THE REPUBLICAN BUDGET PLAN, AND BE SPECIFIC

(Mr. LEWIS of Kentucky asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LEWIS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, shortly after Bill Clinton took over as President, he presented his 1993 budget plan. He was, of course, criticized by Members of Congress on his spending and taxing priorities. He responded to his critics by demanding specifics on how they would do things differently.

In fact, here is a quote from February 18, 1993. In St. Louis, MO, the President said, "My answer is: Show me where, but be specific. No hot air. Show me where, and be specific."

Well, today Bill Clinton criticizes Congress' balanced budget proposal. In fact, he was willing to shut down the Government to prove his point.

He criticizes, but he provides no specifics. He trashes our budget, but he does not say how he would do things differently.

Mr. Speaker, the President should end the hot air campaign and show us exactly where he would do things differently. Show us where, and be specific.

DEMANDING AN ETHICS COMMITTEE REPORT ON ACTIVITIES OF SPEAKER GINGRICH

(Mr. MILLER of California asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, it is becoming clearer and clearer now why Speaker GINGRICH is pressuring Members of the Republican majority not to support the privileged resolution for the Ethics Committee to give the Members of this House and the American public a progress report on their 14-month-old investigation into the speaker's activities.

Today on the front page of nearly every major newspaper in America we are treated to the fact that the Speaker mixed campaign fundraising and his activities as a legislator. We see now tens of thousands of dollars contributed to the Speaker by those individuals that sought his legislative favors before the Congress of the United States, people who sought his favors dealing with asbestos regulation, with cement trade problems with Mexico, where the Speaker, in exchange for those $10,000 contributions, wrote back to those individuals telling them he was terribly interested in their problems, he will look into it, or that he thanks them for their counsel on capital gains.

Mr. Speaker, the House rules are clear on the ethics. You cannot engage in that kind of activity when you are raising money from individuals, and then engage in favors for those individuals later on. The Ethics Committee ought to report to this House and to the American people.

AMERICAN PEOPLE DO NOT WANT TROOPS IN BOSNIA

(Mrs. KELLY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Speaker, we have no business sending troops to Bosnia—plain and simple. That is the message I am hearing from the people I represent, Mr. Speaker, and one the President would do well to heed. I pray he's listening.

The President proposes to send troops trained for combat to somehow enforce an uneasy peace among antagonists who have been at each other's throats for five centuries. He's sending heavy armor in an area totally unsuited for modern armored warfare. He is placing Americans in contact with radical factions that have no love for the United States. Remember, not all of the combatants on the ground have embraced the peace agreement, adding further to a long list of factors which add up to a potential disaster.

In the final analysis, Mr. Speaker, we should never deploy combat troops abroad unless a national security interest is at stake. This deployment does not meet that simple test. Congress has spoken on this matter. The American people are speaking loud and clear. Listen to them, Mr. President. Stay out of Bosnia.

TRIBUTE TO PATRICIA SCHROEDER

(Mr. SKAGGS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Speaker, I take the floor this morning to offer words of tribute to the gentlewoman from Colorado, PATRICIA SCHROEDER, my colleague. The gentlewoman took us all by surprise yesterday with her announcement. She deserves the thanks not only of thousands of grateful Coloradans but from an entire Nation.

Mr. Speaker, whether on issues of military reform or women's rights or the interests of the kids of America, she has been known to rock the boat when that was needed and to set a courageous course for America so many, many times. Her intelligence, her irreverence, her integrity has set the standard, but in no area more than in her wit and turn of phrase has she been an inspiration to so many of us over so many years.

The House of Representatives and the United States have been the richer for PAT SCHROEDER's selfless service.

ROOT OUT MEDIA BIAS

(Mr. SMITH of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, in order to form opinions and reach conclusions, the American people trust the media to present the facts objectively. Unfortunately, all too often this is not done.

Editorials, in the guise of news stories, regularly appear on the front pages of newspapers. Some reporters don't wait beyond the first paragraph to reveal their bias.

In the age of 15-second sound bites, positions on complex issues are reduced to "for" or "against," with no explanations.

The lack of the public's trust in the media is glaringly revealed by two 1995 public opinion surveys.

A CNN/USA Today/Gallup Poll found that 60 percent of those surveyed think the media is out of touch with average Americans. In a Wall Street Journal/NBC News Poll, only 21 percent said the media are very or mostly honest.

Publishers, editors, producers, and reporters can better protect our democracy if they will initiate efforts to root out bias and present the facts objectively to a public yearning for the truth.

ALLOWING DEBATE ON PRIVILEGED RESOLUTION

(Mrs. SCHROEDER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Speaker, in my new quasi-emeritus status, let me talk to the Members of the other side of the aisle. We are going to have a very important privileged resolution come in front of this House today, and that resolution we should be allowed to debate. If they vote to table it, we cannot even debate it. That resolution is about what is the status of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct's report on all the many, many charges against the Speaker.

Please, I say to my colleagues on the other side of the aisle, get your voting cards back, get your spines out of the Cloakroom. We ought to have that kind of a report, especially on a day when the newspapers in America are filled with articles talking about how the Federal Election Commission has
